DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of the restriction requirement in the reply filed on June 27, 2005 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that applicant has the right to file claims of differing scope. Regarding the restriction between apparatus claims, examiner agrees with applicant and withdraws the restriction between the apparatus claims. However, the restriction between method and apparatus is maintained since the apparatus may perform a materially different method. The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 13 recites the limitation "the shoulder" in line 7. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Art Unit: 3731

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,183,474 to Bramlet et al. Bramlet discloses in figure 89 a lag screw 810 having a longitudinal bore 825, external threads on the leading end, a first connector comprising the internal threads in the bore and a discharge hole 826A. (As shown in figure 89, the hole on the left side is the discharge hole since it discharges a tang). The hole discharges a tang. The assembly further comprises a compression screw 860 as illustrated in figure 84. The lag screw comprises an enlarged head and a second connector comprising the threaded shank 864. A side plate 850 having an aperture 856 receives the lag screw 860 and is shaped for longitudinal movement. The side plate includes a barrel 852 and cortical screw holes. The device comprises a tang exit hole 826A in the leading end. (The tang exit hole is located on the right side of the device as shown in figure 89).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3731

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 11 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bramlet in view of U.S. Patent No. 4,653,489 to Tronzo. Bramlet fails to disclose an adaptor 46 having a bore and external threads. Tronzo teaches an adaptor 46 to interconnect a syringe to a side plate to inject cement to secure the threaded fastener within the bone. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include an adaptor (and a syringe) to inject cement to better secure the threaded fastener within the bone. The external threads telescope within the bore. The Bramlet device comprises a seal 842. Tronzo discloses that the adaptor includes a circumferential shoulder 48 between the exit and the connector. The connector attaches to the syringe.

Claims 16 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bramlet in view of U.S. Patent No. 3,791,380 to Dawidowski. Bramlet fails to disclose that the compression screw is connected to a distal end and the tang body 832 moves toward a leading end. Nevertheless, Dawidowski discloses that the tangs may exit in a distal direction out of the body. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the tangs to exit toward a distal end as taught by Dawidowski to effectively secure the device to bone and to create a compressive force. The tip of the device comprises an end cap.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 12, 14, 15 and 18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
